That Coonskin Cap Is Getting To Be Pesky

Sen. Kefauver Is Now Irking Demo Bosses

Illinois May Draft Stevenson; Taft Says Nomination Assured

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—While political experts attempted to evaluate primary elections held so far this week, one thing was certain—that pesky coonskin cap from down Tennessee way was looming larger and larger.

The coonskin cap is worn by Sen. Estes Kefauver who is seeking the Democratic Party nomination for President. His showings thus far have been remarkable, especially in face of the fact that he has lacked party bigwig backing.

He has been unorthodox in his campaign. In the first place, he didn't consult with party leaders as to whether he should or could run. He just ambled along from state to state shaking hands—and hauling down votes.

Thursday, in Springfield, Ill., Democrat Party bosses were convening amid talk of setting up another barrier against the coonskin cap—a draft of Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

STEVENSON, reportedly President Truman's choice as a successor until he said he was running only for governor this year, is in Camp Cooke, Calif. He held a 30-minute telephone conversation Wednesday night with Jacob M. Arvey, Democratic national committee man from Illinois.

"I said I hoped that they would not put me in an awkward spot by proposing me for the presidency," Stevenson told reporters. "I made it as emphatic as I always have, that I am a candidate only for re-election as governor of Illinois."

Arvey, in Springfield, appeared not to have given up on getting the convention to endorse Stevenson for presidential nomination.

The convention will name 20 at-large candidates to the July national convention. Each of the 20 will have a half-vote, completing Illinois' 60-vote delegation.

Backers of two Southern senators seeking the presidency, meanwhile, differed over the effect of Tuesday's Florida primary. In that popularity poll, Richard Russell of Georgia topped Kefauver 339,916 to 272,238 on the basis of returns from all but 56 of 1,682 precincts. Results are not binding on the state's delegates, to be elected May 27.

"THIS STOPS the Kefauver movement," said Sen. Walter George of Georgia, a Russell man, adding it "proves Kefauver can't carry the southern states."

Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois disagreed. He said Kefauver made "a remarkably good showing against great odds," losing only because he was opposed almost solidly by (Continued on Page Two)

Injunction Asked To Halt Mine Pickets

GALLIPOLIS, May 8.—(P)—Attorneys Thursday asked a temporary injunction to restrain pickets at the Ohio River Collieries Inc., mine at nearby Cheshire.

The request was filed in Gallia County common pleas court on behalf of the company and several employees as individuals.

A group of 180 union "organizers" picketed the non-union mine Thursday and Sheriff George Ehmman said they prevented the mine's 80 employees from going to work.

The company asked the injunction to restrain pickets from interfering with employees going to work and from trespassing on company property.

The Ohio River Collieries is an important supplier of coal to the huge Philip Sporn power plant at Graham Station, W. Va., about 18 miles north on the Ohio River.

Sheriff Ehmman said about 200 men invaded the mine premises Monday and drove the employees off with shovels. On Tuesday, the sheriff said, he went to the mine with two deputies and led the employees back to work.

TV Too Expensive

SCHOHAIKIE, N. Y., May 8.—(P)—Sen. Estes Kefauver, erstwhile television "star," says he will not use TV in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. "I can't afford it," he explained.

JUDGE JAMES McGRANERY (right), shown talking with Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Pat McCarran (D), Nevada, at a hearing on his nomination as U. S. attorney general, told the committee that if confirmed he will "fire any incompetent, disloyal or dishonest" employee of the Justice department. But he refused to give his opinion on whether President Truman has power under the Constitution to seize the steel mills.

Now You Can Buy That New Car At Whatever Terms Possible.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—For the first time in 20 months, the government has given you free rein to buy that car, television set, or furniture on whatever terms you can get.

The Federal Reserve Board Wednesday suspended controls over down payments and time-to-pay on grounds that an easing of inflationary pressures made the controls no longer necessary.

There was varied reaction Thursday as businessmen and officials tried to size up the case, now that dealers and finance companies may impose their own terms.

Authorities on the reserve board said actually they expect the effects to be slight.

Some trade circles, happy over the suspension of controls, predicted a boost in sales, which have been lagging.

A few dealers were expected to proclaim the $10 down and $1-a-week type of sale, but in most cases spokesmen for business said the changes probably will be moderate.

However, the Bank of America—the world's largest bank—quickly announced much more lenient terms. A few hours after the controls were lifted, the bank announced it will require no down payment for such household appliances as refrigerators, ranges and washers, and allow 24 months to pay.

Regulation "W" required a one-third down payment on automobiles and 15 per cent down on furniture and appliances, with 18 months to pay.

The government still will regulate terms for real estate purchases—under Regulation "X."

Officials said there is little likelihood of a suspension on this.

Lima Hospital Patients Still Being Sought

CLEVELAND, May 8.—(P)—Police in Parma unsuccessfully searched a wooded park area early Thursday for two crazed criminals who escaped the Lima State Hospital by threatening to slit guards' throats.

A passing motorist started the 1 a. m. hunt by reporting he saw two men answering the fugitive's descriptions.

The hunt was in part of the Cleveland Metropolitan Park system, which swings in a giant horseshoe around the city's limits.

Both Parma and Strongsville where an escape car was found abandoned—are south of Cleveland.

The escapees, Neville Slusher, 24, and Floyd Keith, 23, overpowered two guards at Lima State Hospital for the criminal insane Monday night and commandeered two cars in their flight here.

They tied the owner of the second car to a tree in Metropolitan Park near Strongsville. The man, Ralph Warnecke, 27, was not hurt and finally freed himself.

Grain Deals Show 'Maladministration'

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) says he believes a Senate investigation of the government grain storage program has shown maladministration that needs correction.

Aiken is the ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee investigating government grain transactions. He said the farm aid program, on the basis of evidence taken so far, apparently suffered from a "severe attack of maladministration more than from any defects of law."

Ohio Election Zooms Stock For Two Tafts, Kefauver

COLUMBUS, May 8.—(P)—The popularity of Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Ohio's Taft brothers zoomed Thursday off resounding victories in the state's primary elections.

Kefauver captured half the state's 54 Democratic national convention votes in a showing that presaged changes in the Ohio Democratic organization.

Sen. Robert A. Taft won all 36 Ohio delegate seats in the Republican convention to shut out Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who expressed favor towards Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to court votes.

Eisenhower figured only indirectly in the voting because his name was not on the ballot. Ohio lacked a presidential preference contest and banned write-ins for delegates.

TAFT'S YOUNGER brother, Charles of Cincinnati, won the gubernatorial nomination in a three-man race and the right to face Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche in the Nov. 4 election. Lausche was unopposed for nomination in his quest for a fourth term. His incomplete complimentary vote total of 445,741 paced Democratic candidates.

Former Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo outdistanced three rivals for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator. He will face Republican Sen. John W. Bricker of Columbus who was unopposed for renomination. Bricker's incomplete complimentary vote total of 648,077 topped all state candidates.

Complicated ballots slowed tabulations in Ohio and left them still incomplete but with no statewide contests in doubt.

Unofficial totals indicated that about 1,300,000 voted Tuesday, topping the 1948 presidential primary record of 1,286,721. About 825,000 Republicans voted this year. The secretary of state had predicted 900,000 Republicans and 600,000 Democrats would vote.

Kefauver's victory stunned the Democratic state organization that put up Former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland as a "favorite son" to hold convention votes for trading purposes.

BULKLEY, himself, said Kefauver "made a very remarkable showing."

Kefauver had this to say: "I am pleased that the voters of Ohio are determined to name their own candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination rather than to delegate that privilege to others."

Democratic State Chairman Eugene H. Hanhart of Dover won a district delegate post but lost election as a party state central committee man to Charles L. McDonald of Canton. Statute requires membership on the committee of its chairman but the executive committee could keep Hanhart on as a lay chairman. The new central committee will decide Hanhart's fate. It must meet within 15 days after the election.

Charles Taft got about 47 per cent of the vote cast for the three GOP rivals for the gubernatorial nomination in his first try to state office.

Unofficial totals from 10,037 of the state's 10,312 polling places gave Taft 395,054. Former Gov. Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland 328,863 and State Sen. Roscoe R. Walcutt of Columbus 113,572.

Taft carried 11 large counties, including Cuyahoga (Herbert's home county) where he had the GOP county organization endorsement. He successfully bucked party organization opposition in his home county of Hamilton and Franklin where Walcutt was endorsed.

DISALLE GOT about 46 per cent of the vote cast in the four-man Democratic senatorial race. Returns from 10,296 polling places gave DiSalle 225,531; State Rep. James W. Carney of Cleveland 117,062; John W. Donahoe of Hudson 110,197 and George L. Mark of Cleveland 32,692.

Republicans had three other contests.

Ohio Spud Price Probe Underway

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—Enforcement agents of the Office of Price Stabilization were put on special alert in Ohio Wednesday to crack down on potato price violations. Agents in nine other states also were alerted.

Harry Stein, assistant enforcement director for the OPS, said reports have been received of low grade potatoes marked to a higher grade to get a better price. He said reports also have been made of tie-in sales requiring buyers to purchase large quantities of other vegetables in plentiful supply in order to get potatoes.

Returns from 10,296 polling places gave Brown 297,619; Milligan 281,718 and George V. Woodling of Cleveland 171,196. Brown will face Lt. Gov. George D. Congressmen Plan To Inspect Wilmington, Cincy Airports

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—A House Subcommittee will inspect airports in Northern Kentucky and Southwest Ohio involved in a dispute over location of an Air Force reserve training center.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee suggested the trip at a subcommittee hearing Thursday on an Air Force decision to set up the center at the Greater Cincinnati Airport in Boone County, Ky.

The one-day inspection trip may be made by plane Friday.

E. V. Huggins, assistant secretary of the Air Force, and Maj. Gen. Harry A. Johnson testified that the Clinton County Air Force Base near Wilmington, Ohio, would not be suitable for the center because it is too far from a center of population. This space now is being used temporarily as a training center.

Johnson, who headed an Air Force committee that recommended the Greater Cincinnati site, told the subcommittee:

"YOU PUT YOUR reserve training center where you get your business."

He and Huggins said enlisted reserves are reluctant to travel more than 25 miles to training bases. This, they contended, would make it difficult to develop a program at the Clinton County Base which Johnson said is 50 miles from Cincinnati and 37 from Dayton.

Huggins said the Air Force expects to move the center to a new site near Dayton.

The next maneuver—the third phase of Exercise Desert Rock IV—will involve some 1,500 Army troops, probably two weeks hence. The tests involving the military undoubtedly will be higher-level bomb drops from planes to lessen the danger to human life.

The fact that the AEC still has three 300-foot test towers standing on Yucca Flat indicates the possibility of further tests similar to Wednesday's experiment.

Eleven persons working in Groom's Mine, 20 miles northeast of the test site, have been permitted to return there. The AEC reported no radiation hazard above normal.

Alternatives Being Weighed By UN Chiefs

Red Korean Boss Refuses To Accept POW Trade Proposal

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—An uncompromising announcement by President Truman that "this is our position" has left the Asiatic Communists with the choice of accepting what is apparently the final Allied armistice offer or continuing a war that has cost them much and gained them little.

While the Communists mulled over the declaration that the United Nations' three-point proposal must be accepted in one package, military and diplomatic officials here weighed the alternatives to be used if the offer is spurned.

If the Chinese and Korean Reds turn down the one-package proposal, including the point that there be no forced return of prisoners, who don't want to go back, the prospects for continued war seemed uppermost. The shape this war could take—more prolonged stalemate on the existing battlefield, a blockade of Red China's ports, attacks on the China coast—figured

A major factor in the Korean peace talks is world opinion. James Marlow, Associated Press news analyst, details this situation in his column which appears on Page 4.

In several alternatives considered by the Allies.

The chance of a diplomatic effort outside Korea to settle the dispute remained a possibility.

DEPUTY DEFENSE Secretary William C. Foster was asked by reporters Wednesday if direct negotiations with Russia, a master Communist nation, had been considered. Foster replied that "every alternative has been considered," including that one.

The single package proposal submitted by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's negotiators at Panmunjom contains these three points:

1. That there shall be no forced repatriation of prisoners of war—as the Communists have insisted.

2. The United Nations will not insist on prohibiting reconstruction or repair of airfields in Communist areas.

3. The commission to supervise an armistice shall include two Communist satellite nations, Poland and Czechoslovakia, and two chosen by the United Nations, Sweden and Switzerland.

It was the first point that was at issue and it was that one over which the President was precise (Continued on Page Two)

Bookie Boss Tells Of Cop Protection

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—Boss bookie Harry Gross, who has involved former top city officials in his multi-million dollar bookmaking business, testified Thursday William Whalen, former chief of detectives of the New York police department had been on his payroll.

Gross said Whalen went on his payroll right after he became an inspector, at which time Gross gave him a dinner and an expensive watch.

Before Gross took the stand for the second day in the police department trial of five officers accused of lying about their relations with Gross, a defense lawyer tried vainly to get an adjournment.

All five of the men on trial have filed for retirement this month and unless the case is completed before the effective date of their retirement they cannot be punished by the police department.

They face loss of pension rights in this trial.

Wednesday Gross testified James J. Moran shook him down for a $15,000 political contribution during former Mayor William O'Dwyer's 1949 campaign.

and adamant. He said "we will not buy an armistice by turning over human beings for slaughter or slavery."

THURSDAY, the Communists accused the United Nations Command of delaying a truce in Korea by refusing to negotiate further on prisoner exchange.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il's verbal blast failed to shake the Allied delegates from their no retreat stand against forced return of prisoners to Red rule.

The Allies have told the Reds 62,000 captured Red soldiers do not want to be repatriated.

"Your so-called screening of our captured personnel is absurd," Nam declared in the 18-minute session in Panmunjom.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN Command delegate, called Nam's speech "propaganda that can serve no useful purpose."

At Nam's request, truce delegates will meet again Friday.

The UN Command is willing to return 70,000 of the 169,000 prisoners of war and civilians it says are willing to return to Communist territory. The Reds demand return of 132,000 captured Chinese and North Korean troops.

Deputies Handle 1,400 Articles

Deputies in Pickaway County clerk of courts office processed more than 1,400 articles of vehicle notations during April.

The deputies filed 702 titles last month, while making 376 lien notations and 325 lien cancellations.

During the month, the deputies reported 39 new car titles were filed along with those for seven new trucks, one schoolbus, one motorbike, two motorcycles and one house trailer.

Oil Industry Unions Refuse To End Strike

DENVER, May 8 — Refusal of 22 AFL, CIO and independent oil industry unions to call an end to their week-old strike may send the wage dispute to President Truman.

The Wage Stabilization Board in Washington scheduled a new meeting. Wednesday, WSB Chairman Nathan P. Feinsinger told the House Labor Committee the case probably would be sent to the White House if the board failed to obtain an end to the strike.

Feinsinger had requested the unions to end their strike.

L. A. Knight, president of the Oil Workers International Union, CIO, in Denver, said Wednesday night the strike will continue. He added the unions will have representatives at a WSB meeting here Tuesday as requested.

The unions are asking a wage increase of 25 cents hourly and hikes in night shift differentials. Knight said that any company offer of 18 1/2 cents hourly probably would be accepted.

Brewers Widen Lead In AA Race

LOUISVILLE, May 8 — Louisville dropped to a full game behind league-leading Milwaukee Wednesday night in their feud for the American Association lead by losing 8-3 to St. Paul.

While the Brewers' date at Toledo was postponed by cold weather, Louisville was victimized by the relief pitching of Ron Negray and Al Epperly. The former spaced eight hits over 7 2/3 innings and Epperly hurled hitless ball to the finish.

For the third game in a row, Columbus bagged a one-run victory by shading Kansas City 4-3 in 14 innings.

Minneapolis downed Indianapolis 5-4 after checking a four-run seventh by the Tribe.

Sen. Kefauver Is Now Irking Demo Bosses

Both Russell and Kefauver expressed joy. Russell said his Florida victory puts new steam into his campaign, swinging to the west next week. Kefauver said his Florida showing plus winning of 27 of Ohio's 54 delegates—also named Tuesday—practically assures his nomination.

Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, who leaped all of Ohio's 56 Republican votes Tuesday, also claimed sure nomination.

Nomination requires 604 GOP votes, 616 Democratic votes. The Associated Press delegate tabulation—based on concessions, pledges, instructions and avowed leanings—gives:

Republicans — Taft 332, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower 280

Democrats — Kefauver 104 1/2, Foreign Aid Chief W. Averell Harriman 93 1/2, Russell 41 1/2.

City Honored As Birthplace Of Street Lights

Circleville can truly be dubbed the birthplace of electric illumination in Ohio, according to "Lighthouse," a publication printed by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

The May issue of the house organ contains an aerial view of Circleville on its cover and a two-page layout of scenes taken in the city.

Of particular interest is a picture of the building used in 1884 which was known as the Circleville-Edison Illuminating Co.

This building, now owned by Dick Martin, housed a steam generator capable of producing only 100 kilowatts and furnished the first electric energy known to Circleville. It gave the city the distinction of being the first in the world to be lighted with incandescent street lamps.

Authorities Investigate 'House Fire'

Local authorities raced south on Route 23 late Thursday to watch logs burn.

A passing motorist at about 10:00 p. m. Wednesday alerted local officials by exclaiming he had seen a house on fire south of town and the fire was spreading.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff raced south to investigate, while the rural fire truck raced along behind the sheriff's car to put out the fire.

Both vehicles, with sirens screaming, went to the Pickaway-Ross County line without spotting a house on fire. Returning, they saw the "fire"—a pile of logs burning on the Ralph Head farm near Emmett Chapel church.

The alarmed motorist did not identify himself when he spread the alarm.

HOLLYWOOD FREEWAY, TO SPEED TRAFFIC IN L. A., FILMDOM'S NEW GLAMOR ROAD

World's only grade separation structure having four separate levels, shown here as it will look when all four levels are operating. (California State Division of Highways photo.)

By BOB J. BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—Those famed boulevards named Sunset, Hollywood and Wilshire are still here. However, a new glamor-puss thoroughfare, shortly due for its "world premiere," is already grabbing a large share of the limelight.

In this populous "City-That-Rolls-on-Wheels," the newest vehicular travel darling has been officially named the Hollywood Freeway, costing an estimated $55 million. It is being rapidly pushed toward completion by the California State Division of Highways, under direction of Paul O. Harding, Los Angeles district engineer.

Hollywood Freeway will offer local and visiting motorists the closest thing to flying without actually leaving the ground. Its eight broad driving lanes—four in each direction—will provide "elbow room" to spare, and then some!

Heretofore, life for the average driver in L. A. has been just one red traffic stoplight after another. To him, the new freeway will truly be a magical "flying carpet" 10 miles long—without a single stop light to cause delays.

LIKE TWO giant-size strips of cream-colored taffy candy, the freeway curves gracefully and glides almost unobtrusively below, beside, above and through a maze of city streets and districts.

It extends in a general northwesterly direction from downtown Civic Center, straight through famous Hollywood Bowl at the entrance to historic Calhoun Pass.

One might call the Hollywood Freeway the "backbone" of the vast existing and projected metropolitan Los Angeles freeway system, which is designed to help ease the terrific congestion created by the more than two million registered vehicles in L. A. county.

This modern "miracle road" starts in the vicinity of the old Spanish plaza around which this once sleepy pueblo town was born in 1781.

It runs from the shadow of Los Angeles' skyscraping city hall to Vineland avenue, North Hollywood, which is situated in the "other half" of L. A. known as the San Fernando valley.

THE NEW route will become a replacement section of vital north-south U. S. Highway 101 which runs along the coast to San Francisco and southward to San Diego. It will render comparatively obsolete the more circuitous way to Hollywood via better-known Sunset boulevard.

Parking or stopping of vehicles will be prohibited on the pavement throughout the entire length of 10 miles. However, for drivers who find stopping necessary because of mechanical difficulties, the special type combination curbs and gutters will permit emergency parking entirely off the pavement.

Hollywood freeway, appropriately enough, will tunnel directly under both Hollywood and Sunset boulevards, a few blocks east of Vine street. (No other freeway in the world can make that statement!)

This is the road "that tore down a part of the Hollywood freeway, the house" that Rudolph Valentino lived in, during his greatest years as a screen lover in the early 1920s. (No other freeway in the world can make that statement, either!)

However, Villa Valentino was only one of 87 structures that were demolished to provide an adequate right-of-way for the freeway. In addition, 1,709 obstructing buildings were moved to new locations.

FROM DOWNTOWN Los Angeles, the freeway is now in operation to Western avenue, and all construction activity is between this point and the area north of the film capital.

Completion to Hollywood boulevard is planned by autumn, and the entire job is scheduled to be finished next year. It will then be possible to drive from downtown to outlying points of the San Fernando valley in a matter of minutes. An estimated 100,000 or more cars will make daily use of the new route.

An unusual feature is the world's first four-level grade separation structure which synchronizes, and sifts the huge traffic flows of the Harbor and Arroyo Seco freeways from that of the Hollywood and Santa Ana freeways.

While admittedly expensive, the Hollywood freeway is expected to prove its worth many times through savings in human lives due to new engineering safety features, and in lower driving costs, added convenience and reduction in wear-and-tear on drivers' nerves.

Ex-Employees Give Evidence On Horsemeat

FINDLAY, May 8 — (P)—Four former employees Wednesday testified the Kay Brand Co. of Findlay used "labeled" horsemeat in meat products.

They testified at the trial of Joseph Kirchner, owner of Buckeye Packing Co., formerly the Kay Brand Packing Co.

A Hancock County grand jury indicted Kirchner and eight other Kay Brand officials and employees on charges of selling horsemeat in the guise of beef.

Baldomera Lerma of Findlay, and Jose Orozco and Felix Lerma of Laredo, Tex., former Kay Brand employees, testified they saw green ink stamp marks cut off horsemeat, and paper horsemeat labels ripped off incoming shipments.

Orozco said he saw Eugene Kirchner, brother of Joseph Kirchner, remove several labels from horsemeat shipments.

Eugene Kirchner, vice president of Kay Brand, is one of the nine firm officials and employees under indictment.

John Gradhl, also a former employee, testified Kay Brand used a weekly average of 38,000 to 40,000 pounds of horsemeat in its meat products during the four-year period he worked there.

Average life of a U. S. one dollar bill is nine months.

World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The invisible guest at the Korean truce talks ever since they began last July has been that intangible thing called world opinion.

Both sides were fully conscious of it, appealed to it, and were careful about it through more than 320 meetings filled with bickering, crises and hair-splitting.

They had to be careful about it because of their own peculiar position. They were involved not only in a shooting war but in an ideological one, too.

Each represented itself to people everywhere as the guardian and advance agent of the good life for all people while condemning the other as the enemy of it.

Men continued to die on both sides while the talks went on, but not in full battles. If the talks accomplished nothing else they at least had provided a pause in the full war in which more men would have died.

AND SO LONG as the talks continue the rest of the world could hope there might not be a resumption of that war which might lead to world war.

So because the world had a stake in the outcome, each side knew what the opinion of the invisible guest would be toward the side which broke off the talks and let the war begin for any trivial reason.

Only a few weeks ago there was hope here that the talks would soon reach a successful conclusion with a cease-fire. But suddenly the Communists met a terrible setback in world opinion.

It was on the matter of prisoners. The Communists have about 12,000 UN prisoners, about 7,000 of them South Koreans. The UN has 173,000 prisoners: 100,000 North Koreans, 20,000 Chinese, and 53,000 South Koreans who were civilians or who had fought for the Communists.

Before there could be a cease-fire agreement, the Communists wanted an exchange of prisoners: They'd hand over their 12,000 for the 173,000 held by the UN.

But the UN said: Suppose some of the 173,000 don't want to go back?

The UN remembered that many Russians, taken prisoner by the Germans in World War II, committed suicide rather than be returned to Russia after the war.

THE UN POLLED its prisoners and reported that only 70,000 out of the 173,000 would go back willingly. The UN said it would not force the rest to return.

This was a shocking blow to Communist prestige in Asia and everywhere. They refused to accept the UN position on prisoners. Wednesday the talks had reached their most critical point in 10 months.

If the talks broke off now and full war was resumed, this country was in a good position to appeal to world opinion to blame the Communists.

This was done Wednesday by President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, and Deputy Defense Secretary William C. Foster in a series of statements.

The President summed it up: He said an armistice would not be bought at the price of the 103,000 prisoners who didn't want to return to Communist control where they might be killed.

It was a triple statement of the American position, in case war starts again, in language that people on both sides of the Iron Curtain can understand.

Adelphi School Charter To Be Revoked, Claim

Adelphi high school is expected to lose its charter this year.

According to the state department of education, the Adelphi school and its Harrison Township school district, Ross County, are to lose their charter when the present charter expires July 1.

Assistant State Education Director R. M. Eyman said the state high school board voted not to renew the charter after hearing the pleas May 2 of a school district delegation for another extension.

Eyman said the board found the district had only a half-million tax duplicate whereas a duplicate of five to ten million dollars is necessary to support an adequate, 12-year school program.

THE PRESENT duplicate, Eyman said, was about one-tenth of what it should be. Under present conditions, he noted, it is "just impossible" for the district to keep up to standard.

Adelphi and Harrison Township combined into a district about 18 years ago but the board found the present program lacked sufficient funds for adequate building, teaching programs and equipment.

The department said that Adelphi once was part of an ambitious proposal to set up a tri-county district taking in Laurelville and Salt Creek. This would have included parts of Hocking, Ross and Pickaway Counties.

However, the proposal fell through when the West Hocking district was created, state officials said.

The present Adelphi-Harrison dis-

Burned Airplane Found On Farm

WARSAW, Ky., May 8 — (P)—A burned airplane was found on a farm near here Wednesday night and the body of the pilot was believed to be that of Virgil May, 55, of Delray Beach, Fla., missing since April 24 on a flight from Lima, O., to Florida.

May also was known as Art Williams and papers found strewn around the wreckage bore the name of Art Williams.

Twelve-year-old Carl Noel found the wreckage on his parents' farm, 10 miles east of here. The lad was rounding up cattle in a little used field when he discovered the burned plane.

Famed Boothill Grave Marker Said Missing

TOMBSTONE, Ariz., May 8 — (P)—A souvenir hunter apparently beat Mayor Wally C. Foster to the draw in taking down the famed "He Done His Damndest" grave marker in Boothill Cemetery.

Foster disclosed he went to the cemetery to remove the disputed marker only to find that it had been taken away.

"I guess a souvenir hunter got it," Foster said.

The marker reading, "Jack Williams, He Done His Damndest," was put on an unmarked grave in the famous old burial grounds a few years ago after President Truman referred to it in a campaign speech. The President recently said in a press conference that he wanted to be remembered in the manner of that epitaph.

Mayor Foster wrote the President he would remove the marker "until such time as absolute proof is uncovered as to its accuracy."

"I realize there are no doubt skeletons in our Washington closet, but I don't want them buried in Boothill unless they actually belong there."

The mayor has directed the cemetery custodian, Mrs. Lela Nunnally, to undertake research to determine if there ever was a Jack Williams buried in Boothill under such an epitaph.

Drift Across Atlantic Set By Frenchman

Scientist To Study Theory On Survival On Raft At Sea

PARIS, May 8 — (P)—A young French doctor, who plays the cello an hour a day for amusement, is about to play at being shipwrecked for two months to test his theories of survival at sea.

He is 27-year-old Dr. Alain Louis Bombard who intends to drift across the Atlantic Ocean on a floating "laboratory" raft with four companions living on nothing but seafood.

For thirst, they will drink the doctor's own recipe of seawater mixed with juices pressed from fish with a fruit squeezer. He says it tastes something like mineral water.

A short, stocky and broadshouldered man with large round eyes, Dr. Bombard is preparing for his voyage at his headquarters in the Oceanographic Museum at Monaco. He has not yet definitely picked his companions, but one, he says, is a Dutchman.

THE DOCTOR'S craft, now under construction in Rotterdam, Holland, will be a special Polynesian-type raft—double parallel floats connected by planks. A cabin amidships will shelter bunks, a collection of books and the doctor's laboratory.

At sea, the raft will proceed under sail. It also will have a small auxiliary motor for use in entering ports or in case of grave emergency. The takeoff is set from Gibraltar, sometime around June 1.

Dr. Bombard estimates it will take 12 days to go from Gibraltar to the Canary Islands, and another 12 days to reach the Cape Verde Islands off Dakar on the bulge of West Africa.

From there, on the long and lonely leg across the Atlantic, it will be more than a month before the five men sight land again somewhere between Trinidad and Puerto Rico.

A current theory on shipwrecks is that lifeboats should remain stationary to enable rescue ships to locate them.

The doctor disagrees with that, insists on mobility. His reasoning is that the main problem for survivors is to get enough food—seafood—to keep alive.

For this trip, the doctor's principal equipment will be fishing tackle and the fruit squeezer.

One other source of food, the doctor says, will be the minute plant and animal organisms which float at or near the surface of the sea. To gather this, the crew will be equipped with filter nets. He says that about a quarter of a pound of this—known as plankton—contains as much Vitamin C as half a lemon.

Clay Workers End Walkout

AKRON, May 8 — (P)—A strike of AFL workers in 25 clay pipe plants in Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and Indiana has been settled.

An industry spokesman Wednesday night announced acceptance of terms offered by the 3,600 AFL Brick and Clay Workers. Details were not disclosed. The strike started Monday over fringe issues in a contract that had been orally accepted by both sides. The workers received a 11-cent hourly pay boost under the pact.

INNOVATION IN TOKYO

THE INTERNATIONAL Christian University has just been dedicated at Mitaka, near Tokyo, marking an important step in the cultural life of a people whose interests and energies, formerly devoted to war, are turning to the paths of peace.

Buildings erected for the training of Japanese aviators are being remodeled into classrooms, with funds which came from both the Japanese people and Christians in all parts of the world. Even non-Christians in Japan have been liberal in their contributions. Hisato Ichimada, governor of the Bank of Japan, says the Christian philosophy underlying Japan's democracy is the only force which will save the nation.

President of the university is Dr. Hachiro Yuasa, a graduate of the University of Illinois. The principal purpose of the university is to train graduates for careers in government and public service. Japan has seen nothing like it in all its history, nor has the world.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has given it his full endorsement, declaring: "This Christian university is one of the most important things America and the outside world can do to create for Japan a future leadership with a humane viewpoint."

JUDICIAL INTEGRITY

WHAT THE bipartisan majority in Congress which stood firm against the late President Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme Court feared was that such a court would approve unconstitutional acts engaged in by the President.

Mr. Roosevelt felt frustrated because the high court had turned thumbs down on a few of his shenanigans. Roosevelt wanted authority to increase the justices by a sufficient number so that a majority would have been his appointees.

But Congress stood firm after a bitter, rending battle. Now, 15 years later, nearly every sitting judge is an appointee of Roosevelt or Truman, but each has been confirmed by the Senate. Necessity of Senate confirmation no doubt has kept a few individuals off the bench who might otherwise have been named.

So the federal judiciary, though the product of one-party appointments, remains an independent arm of the government dedicated to interpreting the law according to constitutional authorization.

George E. Scheel's

These Days

President Truman's assertion of unlimited power, no longer stoutly maintained, challenged by the decision of Judge David A. Pine, is now on appeal to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari.

In our system of checks and balances, the executive and legislative branches of government are independent of the judicial, but the majesty of the law crowns all three who must abide by it. The issue in hand is not wages, prices, profits, steel or cigarette butts. The issue is whether the President may function without a law.

In one of the earliest and most important cases argued before the Supreme Court Chisholm v. Georgia, Justice James Wilson in 1793, only four years after the Constitution was adopted, fully stated the authority of the American nation over all men within it. This decision knocks down any theory of unlimited powers and is the first step in establishing the right of judicial review. I quote from it the applicable paragraphs:

"Whoever considers in a combined and comprehensive view the general texture of the Constitution will be satisfied that the people of the United States intended to form themselves into a nation for national purposes. They instituted, for such purposes, a national government, complete in all its parts, with powers legislative, executive and judiciary; and in all those powers extending over the whole nation.

"Is it congruous that, with regard to such purposes, any person, natural or artificial, should be permitted to claim successfully an entire exemption from the jurisdiction of the national government? Would not such claims, crowned with success, be repugnant to our very existence as a nation?"

The court decided that it possessed the power, in this particular case, to review matters between states and between a citizen and a state.

Ten years later, in 1803, Chief Justice John Marshall wrote the outstanding decision of Marbury v. Madison, which established beyond doubt the authority of the Supreme Court to provide judicial review where needed. He wrote:

"The judicial power of the United States is extended to all cases arising under the Constitution.

"Could it be the intention of those who gave this power to say that in using it the Constitution should not be looked into? That a case arising under the Constitution should be decided without examining the instrument under which it arises?"

"This is too extravagant to be maintained.

"In some cases, then, the Constitution must be looked into by the judges. And if they can open it at all, what part of it are they forbidden to read or to obey?"

Marshall decided:

"Thus, the particular phraseology of the Constitution of the United States confirms and strengthens the principle, supposed to be essential to all written constitutions, that a law repugnant to the Constitution is void, and that courts, as well as other departments, are bound by that instrument."

DIET AND HEALTH

A Term That's Often Misused

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY a patient who comes to the doctor with a case of indigestion says someone has told him he has "too much acid in his blood" or "too much acid in his stomach." This, he thinks, may be the cause of his complaints. Other patients with skin rashes, sinus trouble, colds, headache, diarrhea, offer the same story.

There is not much danger that the blood will become too acid. Remember that being acid or alkaline is a matter of degree, like being short or tall. Normally, the blood is slightly more alkaline than water, and the body is organized to keep it at just that level. It does this with a complicated chemical arrangement known as "buffering."

When Protection Fails

On the rare occasions when this protection fails and the blood becomes too acid or too alkaline, the results can be very serious—convulsions, or death. This is frequently seen in such a disease as diabetes.

With the stomach, it is a different story. A normal stomach produces hydrochloric acid, which is very important in digesting food. Usually, when a person says he has an acid stomach, he is complaining of indigestion, with excess gas, bloating, and a sour taste in the mouth. These symptoms may be due to many other causes besides acid in the stomach, including peptic ulcer, gall-bladder disease, stomach tumor, and adhesions of the bowel.

To Discover Real Cause

Many times we find that people who have been blaming their indigestion on an acid stomach, or who think they have a "nervous stomach," really have complaints of a very different nature. It may take a thorough physical examination to discover the real cause. Anyone with frequent attacks of indigestion should have a careful examination by a physician, including X-rays of the stomach.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. J.: My child has a severe case of scabies. What causes it?
Answer: Scabies is an infection of the skin by a mite, and usually is caused by coming in contact with an infected person, his clothing, or bedding. In this condition, small red spots appear which produce a great deal of itching. Usually scabies occurs around areas where there is hair, and between the fingers.

Bennett Ceri's

Try, Stop Me

One of the most improbable anecdotes about the late George Bernard Shaw concerns an evening when a lady dramatist hornswoggled him into attending the try-out of her new play. "Now, you naughty man," she chided kittenishly, "you are not to sneak out in the middle of my drama." Shaw was planked down behind her and leaned forward to get a better view of the proceedings.

Half-way through the first act, the authoress felt a tickling sensation on her neck. Groping in the dark, she felt a loose strand of hair and tucked it firmly into place with a big hairpin. Suddenly Shaw, thoroughly bored by the time, decided to fall back in his seat. Then he cried "Ouch." Then he told the authoress, "Madam, if you will kindly take my beard out of your hair, I promise I won't budge out of this seat until your confounded play is over."

A restraining word from the late Judge Wolsey: "Before judging a man by his associates, remember that Judas Iscariot traveled in the best of company."

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

MISS JULIE put on her black coat and her hat and veil and started out for the little house on stunted street, hoping that Heloise would be in and Leonie out. And on the way she assessed her feelings.

"I want it understood that I'm not doing this so much for Leonie," she murmured to herself. "That boy is a whole lot better than she deserves. I always knew that gyrl was going to cost them tears. Ever since they started spolling her the first day she came to stay. Leonie must have this. Leonie must have that. College!" Miss Julie muttered with emphasis, reaching the climax of her disapproval. "College for the niece of a poor buckra that hasn't got two red cents to leak out of the holes in his pants pockets. It's a wonder to me he didn't plan to have her make the Grand Tour. There's certainly a crack running through that Lemmy family."

Queenie answered the bell, and Miss Julie bustled in, roaring good-naturedly that she had just come in to pay a short visit, and Queenie quite unnecessarily went upstairs to announce her. Miss Julie plodded up, and found Heloise sorting out the laundry.

"Cousin Julie!" she exclaimed affectionately. "I hope you'll excuse me. I have to send all this back. That fool gyrl who does our washing kept it until today and then she sent her boy with it, and he borrowed a goat cart." She wrinkled her nose. "I tried airing it out, but it's no use. And yet I hate to make the poor thing do it all over for nothing."

Miss Julie nodded.

"Go right ahead, child. Don't put on any ceremony for me. You're right. It smells awful. Did you ever hear about the time Brother Joe put the dead eel in the laundry bag?"

Heloise, who loved a crude prank too, smiled at the recollection. "Leonie home?" Miss Julie asked, as soon as she was established.

"No," Heloise said. "She went fishing with that Calvert boy." "They're together a lot, aren't they?" Miss Julie inquired, rummaging in her bag for a peppermint.

"A good deal. It worries Henri so. He hates those Calverts."

"Heloise, do you think Leonie is going to marry that young man?" "I haven't heard anything about it," Heloise said. "But Henri acts as if they were going tomorrow to get their license. I've got two children on my hands, now."

Miss Julie nodded. "Henri and Leonie are at swords' points. Right now he'd have a duck fit if he knew where she was."

"I've been thinking this matter over," Miss Julie said, "and I think it might be a good thing for Leonie. The child is almost twenty-two and of course she can do what she likes. But I've been wondering if Henri couldn't be made to see reason about it."

Heloise looked doubtful. "He seems to be a nice boy," Miss Julie went on, "and he's good-looking and certainly he's smart. The Calverts are all smart."

"Henri hates Colonel Calvert and thinks they are all fiends of some kind," Heloise said. "And he doesn't like the idea of marriage with a Protestant."

"Have you ever thought that Leonie might be the means of converting this young man?"

Heloise looked at her thoughtfully. "No, I never have," she said at last. "I never have. I don't think Leonie is the sort to convert anybody."

It was Miss Julie's firm belief, too, that Leonie had very little piety. She did not like the way the girl slouched in her pew when she was kneeling, and she never had liked it.

"What is Henri going to do about it?" she inquired.

Heloise frowned. "There's very little he can do," she admitted, "but he can be very unpleasant when he gets a notion to be. He can make Leonie feel very unhappy, and himself, not to speak of me, too. And he can make things unpleasant for the young man. Unless he's deeply in love with Leonie, and I doubt that too."

"Oh, you doubt it," Miss Julie said.

"I haven't seen any indication of a grande passion," Heloise said. "Of course I'd like to see Leonie married. There aren't so many eligible young men nowadays. She hasn't got much of a chance to meet them, and this college business has just made her uppity and hard to please."

"Yes, indeed," Miss Julie agreed heartily. "I always said so and I always will. It's no use to talk to Henry O'Donnell, though. His head is like a rock. He's determined to send Betty off to college."

"Henry O'Donnell has the money," Heloise said. "I've often felt that our money might have been better spent in giving Leonie a good time and making it possible for her to know more people. She's had a standing invitation to go to Virginia to visit some friends, but it will cost a heap of money."

Miss Julie sighed.

"Everything costs a heap of money nowadays," she said. "Well, now, it's none of my affairs, but I think you ought to encourage this young man. Husbands don't grow on trees these days. As for a mixed marriage, I made one myself and I've never regretted it. It never turned me away from my duties."

"I'll think it over," Heloise said. "But for Heaven's sake don't say anything to Henri. I wouldn't want him to think I was going behind his back. My life wouldn't be worth living."

Miss Julie wagged her head. "For Heaven's sake, child, you know I'm not the kind that tells me insides."

She left Heloise tempted to collaborate. She did not want to make Henri unhappy, but on the other hand Leonie was not happy. After all, Leonie was her own sister's child.

"Single blessedness," she said to herself, "is not what that gyrl is fit for." And since she did not view Leonie with the same unqualified admiration as Henri, she thought there must be something about the girl which did not attract young men. This Lincoln Calvert was turning into a steady, and promising young man, and Leonie wouldn't find anyone as good-looking in a hurry.

Still, she did not find it easy to make up her mind to practice secret warfare against Henri. She thought she would wait and see before taking sides too definitely. Sometimes these matters had a way of arranging themselves.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, May 8—America's judges now have a chance to break the political grip which organized labor's trio of leaders has had on the White House, Democratic Congresses and the Democratic Party for the last twenty years. They may also smash an alliance which has given its beneficiaries almost a mortgage on the executive branch of the government.

That will be the basic, political effect of the Pine decision in the steel seizure litigation, if it is upheld by the Supreme Court. Incidentally, the high tribunal's prohibition against any wage increase pending its final decision, is regarded as a sign that it will hold against Truman, although the vote may be closer than is anticipated by the general public and the legal fraternity.

HARMFUL—These adverse implications of the courts' intervention are fully understood by such canny and collaborative politicians as President Truman and Philip Murray, head of the C.I.O.

Both realize that this possible reversal of their fortunes, coming on the eve of the presidential election, may be harmful. Both sense that their mutually advantageous partnership may be broken by the substitution of legal processes for political manipulation.

Truman's own friends now deplore his too open play for the labor vote, fearing that it will react against even the best candidate they can name at Chicago. Murray's associates recall their ancient warnings against placing all his trust in political princes, even though their names be Roosevelt and Truman.

REVISING—Although standing on the sidelines, those two other labor politicians—William Green, president of the A.F. of L., and John L. Lewis, U.M.W. boss—are revising their political strategy. Green winces every time the courts upset the Truman-Murray combination, for all his eggs are deposited in a White House basket.

John L. grins and remarks "I told you so," recalling his bitter experiences with both Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. He will also remind his miners that he urged them to vote against both men on the Gompers theory that the unions always lose when they give hostages to any political organization. He ought to know.

DUBIOUS—Although dominated by Democratic appointees, the judicial branch of the government, which was alternately snubbed and gerrymandered by both the Roosevelt and Truman regimes, may now undo the political revolution which transformed the labor unions into an annex of the Democratic Party.

With the shift of certain racial elements from the G.O.P., this desertion has been chiefly responsible for five successive Democratic presidential triumphs. Without a return of a sizable portion of this vote, the Republicans' chances of recapturing the executive branch are dubious, even behind an Eisenhower.

ESSENTIAL—Even more than a repudiation of Truman's attempt to expand executive authority in the steel seizure, the judges' assertion of the law will strip the president—any president, not simply Truman—of a vast reservoir of political strength.

The man in the White House, if the courts support Judge Pine, can no longer assure ballot-box success for himself or his party by surrendering to the labor bosses whenever they threaten to call a strike in a key industry. And today, in our integrated and complicated economy, the judges may hold that almost every industrial operation has become essential to the national welfare or security.

PATTERN—Ever since the sensational sit-down strike in Detroit automobile factories in the mid-thirties, the unions have resorted to such a persistent and definite pattern in their relations with the government that it has become one of their by-laws. It has rarely failed to win them their demands.

In war or peacetime, they have struck. During hostilities, F.D.R. took them over under specific statutory authority, and eventually negotiated a new contract eminently fair to the unions. When the plants were returned to the private owners, the higher wage scales were continued under new and more generous price arrangements with the government. Thus Uncle Sam, which means the taxpayers, subsidized the strike and the wage boosts.

With the coming of peace and evidence that both labor and government planned to continue this tit-for-tat game, Congress passed a labor-management law known as the Taft-Hartley Act. It has been reviled by both the White House and the Murray-Green-Lewis trio. Truman, as in the steel dispute, has tried to by-pass it in every labor crisis.

STRATEGY—With his promulgation of a self-created emergency—the "cold war"—and the "police action" in Korea—Truman tried to use the same wartime strategy. First, he sought to take over the plants, and give the unions what they demanded during his period of extremely nominal ownership and operation.

Judge Pine declared that his seizure was illegal and unconstitutional, to put it mildly. In a special ruling, the Supreme Court told Truman that he could not raise wages during his fourteen days of industrial dictatorship.

Now, fairly and squarely, it is up to the Supreme Court to force the White House and the unions to abide by the Constitution rather than the might-makes-right law of the political jungle!

Methodist Woman's Society Holds General Meeting

Mrs. Ralph Mull Is Guest Speaker

Members and guests of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church were presented with a program of cards as they entered the Sunday school chapel for the general meeting, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Ralph W. Mull of Middletown, secretary of Christian social relations for Ohio conference, was the guest speaker and she used as her topic, "Family And Its Difficulties."

Mrs. Mull used many examples and humor to illustrate points during her speech. However, she stated that the varied serious problems of family life today were divorce, over crowded living conditions, confusion, bickering, noise, both employed parents, lack of loving discipline, lack of understanding of each individual in the family, emotional instability and lack of spiritual interest.

She also said that we must include God in our family life and that delinquency is caused by lack of concern for anything of spiritual worth.

She concluded by saying that families today must be a strong unit for churches and schools if the country's Democratic way of thinking is to be carried out, and this takes more spiritual living within the home.

Preceding the program, the Junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Vaden Couch, presented two selections. Mrs. Betty Goodman was the accompanist.

The Rev. Robert Weaver presented Mrs. Couch and Mrs. Goodman corsages as a token of appreciation for their work in the choir.

THAT EX-PRESIDENT PROBLEM

After 150 Years U. S. Has Not Solved How to Make Use of Their Experience

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON

Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — After he has held the biggest job in the land, and achieved the childhood ambition of virtually every American, what is left for a President to do when he leaves the White House?

That question confronts Harry S. Truman these days, as it has at least 21 other able-bodied ex-Presidents in history, and no uniform answer is to be found in their widely varied experiences.

Since the new Twenty-second Amendment to the United States Constitution pegs presidential tenure at no more than two terms, the chief executive, like so many others in modern society, faces a definite retirement date he has to contemplate.

Six of the 32 men who have been President died in office: Franklin D. Roosevelt, Benjamin Harrison and Warren G. Harding from illness; James A. Garfield, William McKinley and Abraham Lincoln by assassination. Three others were in very bad health at retirement and died soon afterward—Woodrow Wilson, Chester Arthur and James Polk.

George Washington lived only two years after returning to Mount Vernon, but when war with France threatened he consented to become Army chief again. Although he never filled the post, he set a precedent for many former Presidents who stood ready to continue active.

Truman, at 68, will be the oldest to have left the White House, except Andrew Jackson and James Buchanan, both 69. Theodore Roosevelt at 50 was the youngest.

HE MIGHT, of course, consult the only living ex-President, Herbert Hoover, for hints as to how to keep busy, because the 19 years since Hoover rode back down Pennsylvania avenue from Franklin D. Roosevelt's inauguration is exceeded as a post-White House career by only four others: the long-lived Adamases, John, 24 years, and John Quincy, 20; James Madison's 20, and Millard Fillmore's 21. However, the trend has been toward shorter careers as elder statesmen, the ex-Presidents prior to Lincoln averaging 11 years and those afterward averaging only six years, four months. The first eight Presidents survived the job by an average of 15 years.

The increasing pressure may be indicated by the fact that several times there have been as many as four living ex-Presidents, but since Grover Cleveland there never has been more than one at a time except for a few years that Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard

President Truman at White House desk. Inset is former President Hoover.

Taft remained while Wilson served, and while Calvin Coolidge and Taft lived under Hoover.

TRUMAN has indicated that he will not seek election to the Senate, as he had hinted he might do. Only two ex-Presidents entered Congress after their terms.

John Quincy Adams probably served in the House with more distinction than as President for four years, and the unhappy Andrew Johnson was re-elected to his old Senate seat from Tennessee, but died the day after delivering a brilliant address in vindication of his turbulent White House career.

If Truman chooses simply to rest he will follow the distinguished precedents of Washington, John Adams, Jackson, James Madison, James Monroe, Buchanan, Rutherford B. Hayes, and Thomas Jefferson, the latter except for his role in building the University of Virginia.

Asked if he might lecture and write, Truman diffidently said that he was no great shakes at either, but might try. Neither was U. S. Grant, but he penned one of the most highly-regarded autobiographies. Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, Theodore Roosevelt, Hoover and Coolidge all wrote extensively.

And John Tyler, Cleveland, Taft and Roosevelt took to the lecture platform. Extensive travelers among ex-Presidents included Fillmore, Grant, Theodore Roosevelt, and Franklin Pierce, who spent three years in Europe relaxing.

Retirement had its grim aspects for four. Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were burdened financially by their big houses and the fact that they could not "eat fame," but instead had to pay a dear price for entertaining multitudes of admirers.

All had to accept assistance either by popular subscription or from Congress. Grant was broken by reverses in a business venture with his son, and had to write to pay his bills. He died four days after completing his Autobiography.

THERE are several outstanding examples of continued active careers, however. Grover Cleveland, between his two terms and at retirement, practiced law and participated in the building of two of the largest insurance companies.

Taft became a law professor at Yale, president of the American Bar association, and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, while Benjamin Harrison represented Venezuela before the world court at The Hague in its boundary dispute with Great Britain.

In fact, the personal problems of the ex-Presidents may be less hard to solve insofar as continued usefulness is concerned, than finding an answer as to how the country can best utilize their invaluable experience as former occupants of the nation's No. 1 job.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 8.—Frying chickens and tomatoes cost a little less in most places this week, and many stores also trimmed retail prices of hams, chuck roasts and several cuts of lamb as specials for the coming weekend.

Shoppers are likely to find some unusual bargains in cakes, too—for Mother's Day. The stores are promoting special cakes, candies and even apple pie more heavily than usual for the occasion this year.

Price declines predominated in the fresh produce department. Lower in most markets, with supplies picking up, were asparagus, beets, broccoli, celery, corn, cucumbers, escarole and endives, mushrooms, radishes and summer squash.

Lettuce worked a little higher, however, and carrots, cauliflower and sweet potatoes were up in some places. Citrus fruits were about unchanged, and more strawberries and cherries were being shipped to distant markets and their prices were moving lower.

THE SUPPLY squeeze in potatoes continued over most of the nation. Dealers said it appeared markets distant from growing areas might have to wait until early June for any notable improvement. They said many growers in California apparently were leaving their potatoes in the ground longer than usual, to grow bigger, with buyers fairly well assured for them.

Frying and broiling chickens were one to as much as 10 cents a pound cheaper in many stores this week, reflecting record production. Some 2½ million more broilers-fryers are expected to be on the market this month than at this time last year.

Tender young chickens top the Agriculture Department's list of most-plentiful foods for thrifty buying both this week and next. Other foods on this week's list were asparagus and spinach.

Some nationally-advertised brands of family flour advanced 10 cents a hundred pounds at the producer level this week and millers said the boosts probably would show up eventually at retail. Cake flours sold in bulk to bakeries also were marked up, about 15 cents a hundred pounds, by some mills.

Lancaster Man Finds Better Health—So Can You

"I am 53 years old, and had always been overweight," writes D. E. Groves, 137 E. Fair Ave., Lancaster, Ohio. "Before taking Rennel I was also troubled with pains in my legs and knees. Now since I have been using Rennel the pains have left my legs, knees and hips entirely, and I have lost 70 lbs. and 8 inches from my waistline. weight with this effective home recipe. Obtain liquid Rennel at your drug store, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. It makes each drop of gas say uncle

Then it's fired. And when that happens, a drop of gasoline certainly lets loose power.

This isn't something that happens in a "car of the future."

It happens in a Buick Fireball 8 Engine today. It's a high-compression engine. It's a valve-in-head engine. But it's also a Fireball in performance as well as name.

And it puts extra power under the hood—and extra miles in the fuel back in the gas tank.

Now, power is great, but what goes with it? Mister, that's something you ought to find out—and soon.

What goes with it is an automobile as sweet-handling, eager and willing as anything that ever made your pulse leap to a faster beat.

It's a car that seems to know what you want it to do—true and sure in its course on a straightaway—beautifully balanced on curves. It's a car with Dynaflo Drive* to feed power with infinite smoothness—and a road-hugging levelness of ride that took a million in cold cash to perfect.

And it is, with all this, a very tidy bargain. Why not price it, drive it, know it for yourself? We'll be glad to arrange a demonstration.

7 Years Ago U.S. Troops Ended War

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—Seven years ago this week the guns ceased fire in Europe, and a way of life they never wanted ended for millions of Americans.

It was the way of war. The news had been expected along the front for days, the link-up of the American and Russian forces along the Elbe River had made a German surrender only a formality.

But when word of the final surrender did come it raced through the battle lines like a surf of joy.

Yet in the hour of victory there was a strange lack of wild elation among the combat troops. They had fought too long and too hard for this moment, and they were overtired.

And in most soldiers' hearts there was this worry: "Hitler is down, but Hirohito is still to go. Will I have to go to Japan now?"

It is no criticism of the courage of these troops to say that most of them had no enthusiasm for a long journey to the Far East and more fighting there. They felt that Europe had been their way and they had won it. They had lost many friends along the march from Normandy to the Elbe. All they wanted was to go back home and pick up the life they had left behind—to be again as they had been before.

It was this feeling—the doubt as to whether they would be ticketed to the USA or Japan—that accounted for the little general jubilation over the end of the European war.

Some soldiers wiped their eyes at the news. Some fired their carbines into the air—and immediately got hawled out for wasting ammo. Some went absent without leave. Some dug out hidden bottles of French brandy and got roaring tight. Some went off and sat by themselves and thought of buddies who hadn't made it all the way.

But most of the men just gathered in small groups and talked it over—and there really wasn't too much to say.

I remember that night... the sweetness of sleep on in safety... tracer bullets lofting lightly up through the darkness as someone growled "there's another trigger happy fool celebrating"... cigarette butts glowing and dying like fireflies in the lips of men stretched flat on their backs and staring up at the sky and thinking long, long thoughts of those away.

Already, this mighty army, its task done, was beginning to disintegrate. The men no longer were thinking of the common goal ahead—a river to be crossed, a ridge mass to be stormed and taken. They were being pulled apart by the tugs of peace, the possibility of going back to their own private lives.

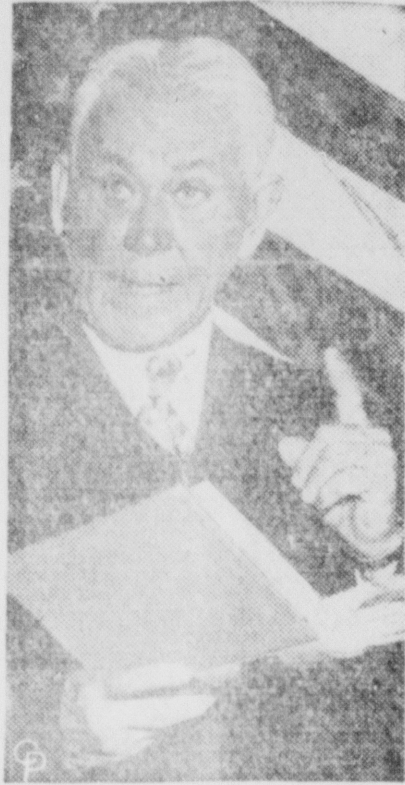

Once its goal is gone, the army is gone. The breakup of the vast American fighting machine began that night of victory seven years ago in Europe.

The army came home, disbanded, and built more homes and families and had more children than any army in history.

"What did you do in the last war, Daddy?" asks a small son of one of these combat veterans. And today—seven years later—Daddy looks at the puzzling picture in Europe, scratches his head, and wonders himself.

"Well, I whipped Hitler," he finally ventures.

"Who's Hitler?" demands his small son.

FEDERAL JUDGE George A. Welsh is shown in his chambers in Philadelphia after he had ruled that the law requiring bookmakers and numbers operators to register and buy a $50 tax stamp was unconstitutional. He said it was a "police law" enacted under the guise of a tax bill and was also an invasion of states' rights. (International)

Seven State Legislators Fail In Bids For Renominations

COLUMBUS, May 8 — Five state representatives and two state senators failed in bids for renomination in Tuesday's primary election, according to complete unofficial returns.

Richard V. James of Magnolia, Stark County, and C. L. Foxwell of Springfield, Clark County, both Republicans, lost their senate contests.

Their defeat could be attributed in part to the decennial reapportionment, based on the 1950 census. That reapportionment reduced the number of senators in their districts from two to one.

Both lost to their fellow senators with whom they served in last year's session of the legislature.

Theodore M. Gray Jr. of Piqua defeated Foxwell in the 11-12th district. James was defeated by Robert A. Pollock of Canton in the 21st district.

Beaten also in the primary, according to unofficial tabulations, were these five state representatives:

FRANK H. Pierce (R) Huron County; James R. Joyce (D), Jefferson County; George C. Philpot (R), Noble County; Paul Fowler (R), Scioto County, and John Lehman (R), Stark County.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Some of us can remember the day when parents were warned by influential experts never to kiss and cuddle their children, even their tiny babies, lest it might lead to some emotional disturbances later on.

But in more recent years the insistence of practically all advice to parents has been to give the child more affection. Kiss and cuddle the infant and young child, avoiding his lips, of course, for health reasons.

Often the mere physical contact from being held while fed at the breast or from the bottle, or just being held gently and tenderly during the preschool years, expresses like tenderness. Undoubtedly this teaching has been generally wholesome.

But a great many parents have supposed that affection for the child is expressed chiefly in such ways and that there's no more to it. Yet any parent knows that even while she's cuddling an infant or putting her arms about her ten-year-old daughter, she may have no feelings of affection or may turn to angry shrieking at her child the next moment.

THE MORE discerning parent also knows that the child knows these facts. What parent can fool a child about what's in this parent's heart? Yet we must admit that by practicing some physical show of affection to the child, we may incline to feel affection for him.

Some other parents suppose that to show affection to the child means to let him have what he wants when he wants it, and to avoid restraining him. On the contrary, as I have often pointed out, adequate early restraints are necessary if the child is to get as much affection as he deserves. What parent can be always lovely to the child who has no regard for his necessary forbidding or that of anybody else?

Go on, young mother, expressing your genuine normal affection in ways which Nature prompts you. Only realize as you do so that such expression is the mere beginning of more abiding ways of showing affection. Physically, it's the tenderness of voice, the smile of your eyes, along with your understanding, heart and mind.

We really show genuine affection as we answer the child's questions kindly, keep explaining things to him and listen patiently and wholeheartedly to what he has to say when he is two or eighteen; when nothing that he says seriously—and he is nearly always very serious—would cause us to smile or laugh; when we truly enjoy his creations and achievements and always make him feel he is a worthy, precious person; when we so live with him hour by hour and day by day that he feels comfortable in our presence, and has a proud and happy feeling when he hears our names or thinks of us in our absence.

Our fondest wishes as parents to grow up with our children so as to provide them with such love, and earn such love and esteem from them, I have tried to express in that prayer I once wrote for myself as parent.

Q. My husband is in a sanitarium for the tubercular. What may the children and I do to contribute to his recovery?

A. In addition to visiting him when the doctor permits and you are able, write to him, both you and the children, often and regularly. Make this letter-writing a family ritual. Send him all the good jokes, cartoons and comic strips you can find.

Q. May not some children be better off if there is a divorce than to live in a family where parents are mutually unfaithful or constantly bickering?

A. Yes, but it is often easy for one or both parents to justify their own problems and delinquencies under the guise of being "kind to the children," without exhausting their own resources at self-discipline.

Q. When the boy friend of our daughter, 18, calls for her on a date, should we hope to have him come into the house then?

A. Yes, indeed. Make it easy for him to do so.

CHS Cindermen Collect Second Place In 1952 SCO League Meet

Circleville high school's Tiger track team ranked in second place Wednesday during the 1952 South Central Ohio League track meet in Wilmington.

The Tiger cindermen ranked next to Washington's Blue Lion thinsies in the match, while Wilmington Hurricane tracksters earned third place.

Washington topped the SCOL championship during the test by registering a total of 61 points; Circleville was second with 54; Wilmington took third with 51; Hillsboro won fourth with 18; and Greenfield trailed with 13.

Although Circleville won second place in the league contest, only two Tigers broke into the first place column while Washington boasted six first places, Wilmington had five and Hillsboro had one. Greenfield was blanked.

It was the Tigers' depth in the place positions, however, which gave them second place in the meet. Circleville collected four 2nd place berths; five 3rd's; six 4th's; and three 5th's.

PACING THE TIGER track team in the meet were Big Bill Gillis and Gordon Blake. Gillis won first place in the shotput by heaving the ball 42'8 1/2", while Blake won first in the high jump with a leap of 5'1".

Athletes winning first place posts in the meet were awarded medals, while ribbons were awarded for the place positions.

Turner Suffers Second Fracture

Bob Turner, second baseman for the Circleville high school baseball team, suffered a fractured right arm Wednesday in a game against Washington C.H.

The mishap was the second time this school year Turner has had his right arm fractured in high school sports. The arm was fractured first during last football season.

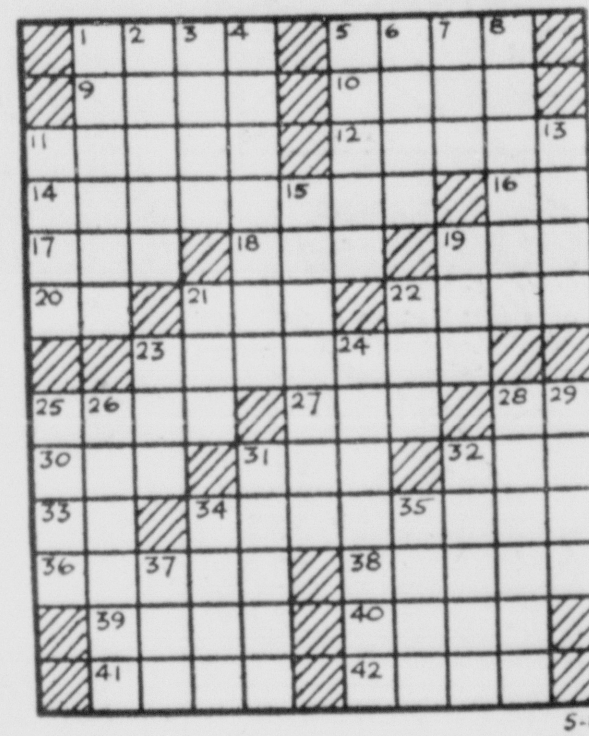

Turner suffered the fracture during the opening inning of Wednesday's game when he took a throw-down from Catcher Jerry Pritchard in a steal attempt by Washington. The Washington runner was cut down in the play.

However, the Tiger second sacker said the arm did not begin to hurt him until about the fifth inning. He was replaced in the sixth and examination when he returned home revealed the limb was fractured.

Sokolsky's These Days

In the steel seizure case, the President has taken a step for which he has no law. In a word, he has exceeded his authority. That is the purport of Judge Pine's decision, which says:

"These (enumerated by him) are the only sections (of the Constitution) which have any possible relevancy, and their mere enumeration shows the utter fallacy of defendant's claim."

"Neither singly nor in the aggregate do they grant the President, expressly or impliedly, as that term has hereinabove been defined, the 'residuum of power' or 'inherent' power which authorizes him, as defendant claims, to take such action as he may deem to be necessary, including seizure of plaintiffs' properties, whenever in his opinion an emergency exists requiring him to do so in the public interests. Instead, in Congress is lodged, within Constitutional limitations, the power 'to provide for the common defense and general welfare.'"

The Supreme Court has held that it has no general supervising power over the proceedings and actions of the various administrative departments of government.

However, the court may decide on the rights of individuals (or corporations) under the Constitution. The confiscation of property and protection against executive acts

The Butt softballers are slated to meet Grove City in their home opener.

Grove City is the former Ben Brew team, third-place aggregation in the state last season.

Bolt And Burke Favored In Test

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—(P)—Two of the top golfers of the winter pro circuit, Jack Burke Jr. and Tommy Bolt, were heavy favorites as the first Pan-American golf tournament opened Thursday.

unwarranted by law do properly come within the scope of the judicial power.

The unanimous decision of the Supreme Court last Saturday to accept jurisdiction in the appeals of the various parties to Judge Pine's decision, the issuance of a stay forbidding the change of the status quo regarding wages, unless mutually agreed upon, of itself establishes the truth that in the United States, no official, including the President, possesses unlimited powers.
